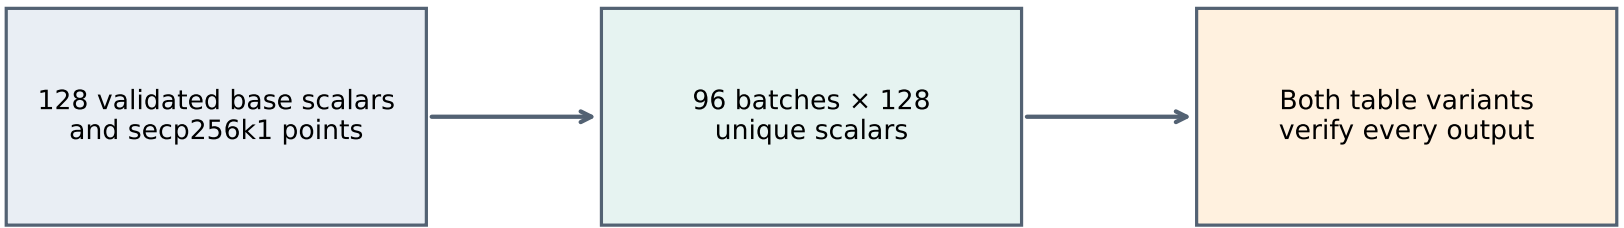
Frozen distinct-input panel: fixture generation → timed batches → correctness replay



The fixture is a deterministic scalar arithmetic progression derived from a checked base panel.
This supports a batch-throughput result for this input law; uniform random scalars and single-scalar latency remain unmeasured here.